THE SECOND GENERATION

By DAVID GRAHAM PHILLIPS

While this great novel was running serially in SUCCESS Magazine, the editor said that it made such a sensation among the subscribers that, as each instalment appeared, they began

"Fighting for the Mailbags"

"The Second Generation" he further described as "a great American novel, written by an American, with American surroundings, and dealing with a subject lying deep-rooted at the heart of American life."

The plot concerns a self-made manufacturer, who arriving at the end of his life finds his son and daughter spoiled by luxury. For their own sakes he wills almost all his money to a college, leaving his children to work out their own salvation. The novel shows dramatically and romantically how they battle with difficulties and win happiness, love and strength. It is told with all the skill of its gifted and successful author. It is an absorbing story, with a noble motive. All signs point to its being

GERONIMO'S STORY OF HIS LIFE

Taken down by S. M. BARRETT

Illustrated by photographs, $1.50 net; postage 14 cents

"About a dozen army officers and War Department men declared these reminiscences of old Geronimo must never be printed. But Theodore Roosevelt said they should be printed, and they have been. They make a book worthy of all praise."
—New York Evening Mail.

MARCEL LEVIGNET

A fascinating novel by ELWYN BARRON of a chivalrous Frenchman and his exciting amateur detective work to save the good name of a Baroness.

$1.50 postpaid

"Marcel Levignet is the hero, a bon viveur, a raconteur, a French Sherlock Holmes and a romantic and chivalrous defender of virtue. Intrigue well handled, plot carefully constructed and crime ably conceived and skillfully carried out enter into the story. It is highly colored, hotly flavored and audaciously incredible."—New York Sun.

MOLIÈRE: A BIOGRAPHY

By H. C. CHATFIELD-TAYLOR. Introduction by Professor T. F. Crane, of Cornell University; pictures by "Job"; pp. xxiv.-446; $3.00 net; postage 24 cents

"It is no small credit to American literature that such a work as this has been prepared by an American author, and for many years, we venture to say, Mr. Chatfield-Taylor's 'Molière' will be the standard in the English language both for the general reader and the student."—The Philadelphia Public Ledger.

WHAT ARE

WEBSTER'S DICTIONARIES?

We have recently published a pamphlet entitled, "Further Truth about certain So-called Webster's Dictionaries."

Have you seen it? If not, then let us send you a copy. We think it will interest you. Possibly it may assist you in arriving at a better understanding of the present dictionary controversy. In any event, it will aid you in solving the question at the head of this article. It is yours for the asking. The pamphlet is in answer to a defamatory and misleading circular over the signature G. & C. Merriam Co., which has been scattered broadcast among the trade and in educational circles. You may have seen the pamphlet. If so, then all the more reason why you should read what the other side has to say.

In the issue of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY of Dec. 15, 1906, the G. & C. Merriam Co. have what purports to be a reply to the "substantial points" of our pamphlet. That is, "substantial points" as they choose to consider them. The real issues, however, they carefully avoid. Why? Are they afraid to meet them? It certainly has that appearance.

The burden of the "reply" is, that the Merriam Co. own, as a chattel, the Websterian system of English speech; that they have the sole and exclusive right to prepare text-books from which that system shall be taught; that all dictionaries prepared by them are "genuine," whether conforming to Webster's standards or not; that all books not prepared by them are "spurious," however closely they may adhere to Webster's spellings, definitions and diacritical markings. With strange inconsistency they admit that the original work of Webster and his coadjutor, Goodrich, has become common property, yet they still insist that all books prepared by others than themselves, even though exact reproductions of the originals, are only "imitation Websters." Just how they reach these conclusions is not very clear. Possibly it was not intended that it should be. They further assert, by implication at least, the sole ownership of all lexicographic knowledge; that they alone possess the depth and breadth of "modern scholarship" necessary for efficient work in dictionary compiling, and that no others are qualified to compete with them in this field of effort. It was because of these arrogant pretensions, and the offensively insolent manner in which they were presented, that we were compelled to answer their pamphlet and expose the hollowness and hypocrisy of their claims.

They endeavor, in their reply, to create the impression that we are assailing them. This is untrue. They are the aggressors and we have only struck back in self-defense. During our long career as publishers we never have attempted to sell our own publications by disparaging those of our competitors, and our pamphlet never would have been written were it not that the issue was forced upon us by the malignant character of their attack. And does not their own reply furnish the true animus of that attack? Do they not stand convicted by their own words, when they "freely confess" that their "primary motive" in " criticising" our publication was "simply to sell our own (their) books and make some money"? And MAKE SOME MONEY. Yes, those words explain all.

They assert that their dictionaries are sold only on their merits. If so, then why do they seek to decry and belittle the books of their competitors? These methods are not necessary to market a meritorious article, neither are they resorted to by reputable publishers who rely only on the intrinsic goodness of their publications. They affect also, to make light of our allusions to monopolies, combinations and trusts in the book trade, but it would have been of "some interest to the educated public," if they had explained why they are so zealous in defending the dictionaries published by the American Book Company, the books which directly compete with the Laird & Lee editions.

They say, in extenuation of its faults, that their Webster's (?) Handy Dictionary was "never designed for school use." Then for what purpose was it published? From a careful inquiry among the trade and the school book depositories, it would seem that during the first copyright period (28 years), not less than five or six million copies of this book were sold, and conservative estimates place the number going directly into schools, and the hands of children, at not less than nine-tenths of the entire output. It would also be interesting to the "educated public" to know whether this book is a "genuine" or a "spurious" Webster. If the name of Webster is so sacred, why do they desecrate it by affixing it to a book that the great lexicographer would have spurned? But, it may be said, why have the schools tolerated this imposition? Because, until Laird & Lee published their series of Webster's New Standard Dictionaries, the G. & C. Merriam Co. had a monopoly of the school dictionary business. The schools had no choice. They had to take what was offered or go without.

The Merriam Co. attempt to justify their attack upon us by alleging an infringement of their "moral right" of "exclusive proprietorship in the title Webster's Dictionaries." Where did they get it? Not from Noah Webster, for he explicitly gave his system to the American people. Not because they were the original publishers of his books, for this honor belongs to another. Nor yet merely because they may have owned copyrights which expired years ago. In what way have we injured them, legally or morally? We have not violated any of their copyrights; we have not used any of their trade-marks; we have not imitated the style of their books, nor have we sold our product as theirs. No, we have simply done the same as they have done and are now doing. We have used the original Webster's Dictionary as revised by Goodrich in 1847 as the basis of our books. This we had both a moral and a legal right to do. Like them, we have "employed the most modern scholarship and the results of the latest scrutiny of today's language to enrich and perfect our works." Wherein have we injured them then? Oh! We have broken their monopoly. We have touched their one tender spot, the capacity to MAKE SOME MONEY. We have produced a "genuine" Webster Dictionary for the use of schools. Therein lies our unpardonable sin.

In its final analysis the G. & C. Merriam Co.'s reply amounts to this; that for many years they enjoyed a monopoly of the publication and sale of school dictionaries; that they found the monopoly very profitable; now that the monopoly has been destroyed it is morally unjust that they should be compelled to relinquish the profits which it brought them. That is about the substance of it. And now that the "moral issues" involved have been given to the public, we, too, are willing to rest our case, and we agree to abide by any decision the public may pronounce.

"A new creation."
"Skillful and daring."
"Remarkably original."
"Capital and surprising."
"Fresh and unconventional."
"Exciting and well-written."
"Of sure and unfailing interest."

NOTES IN SEASON.

JOHN JOSEPH MCVEY, 1229 Arch Street, Philadelphia, will publish on the 10th inst., "The Roman Forum and the Palatine, according to the latest discoveries," by Horace Marucchi, with two plans and numerous pictures in the text; also, Ludy's "Answers to Questions Prescribed by Pharmaceutical State Boards."

R. F. FENNO & CO. will publish this month "A Sealed Book," by Alice Livingstone, author of "A Man's Angel," etc., described as a "striking story, crowded with incidents full of varying scenes and with a strong heart interest;" "Captured, the Story of Sandy Ray," a romance of army life in the Philippines, by General Charles King; "The Corner House," by Fred M. White, a mystery story similar to his story called "The Crimson Blind;" also, "The Court of Pilate," a story of Jerusalem in the time of Christ, by Roe R. Hobbs.

D. APPLETON & CO. will publish on the 18th inst. David Graham Phillips's new novel, "The Second Generation," a story with American surroundings, dealing with a subject lying deep-rooted at the heart of American life. The plot concerns a self-made manufacturer who, arriving at the end of his life, finds his son and daughter spoiled by luxury. For their own sakes he wills almost all his money to a college, leaving his children to work out their own salvation. The novel shows dramatically and romantically how they battle with difficulties and win happiness, love and strength.

GEORGE W. JACOBS & CO. have prepared for the Valentine season a number of attractive souvenir booklets tied with gay ribbons and with special cards dedicated "To My Valentine." Among the titles announced are "Phases, Mazes and Crazes of Love," by Minnie Thomas Antrim, which may be had in decorated boards and in ooze sheep; "Shakespeare's Sweethearts," by Sara Hawks Sterling, a very attractive book in every respect, with special Valentine ribbon, card, etc.; "The Book of Love," one hundred of the best love poems, bound in leather; "Love Sonnets of Elizabeth Barrett Browning, bound in flexible leather; also, five volumes in the Love Tale Series, dealing with English, Irish, Scotch, German and American love tales, bound in cloth and in leather and neatly boxed.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY will publish shortly a book entitled "Practical Problems in Banking and Currency," a collection of addresses delivered before the National Banking Association in recent years by about eighty authors prominent in the world of finance. The book is particularly timely, as the past year has been one of the most notable in the history of the currency discussion, while Secretary Shaw's report and the probable discussion of currency conditions in Congress will keep this subject prominently before the public in the immediate future. They will publish early in the spring a new book on the Eastern question by B. Putnam Weale, author of "The Reshaping of the Far East." The new book is to be entitled "The Truce in the East," and is likely to attract considerable attention. Mr. Weale believes that the Eastern question is in many respects more threatening to-day than ever before. The enormous borrowings of Japan, and the likelihood that the Korean question will come up again within a few months, are indications of an approaching crisis in Japanese affairs that make this work particularly timely.

The stories in this volume have been selected with a view to giving children, through the medium of story-telling, tales of recognized literary and legendary value. Where it has been found necessary to alter the form of a story in order to make it "tellable," this has been done with great care to preserve as closely as possible the author's mental attitude and mode of expression. Suited to children of the second and third grades.

The story of an English school for boys by the author of "Honor bright" and "Loyal and true." The second form master, himself an honorable fellow, has a brother who has been convicted of forgery. This is brought up against him by some of the pupils, in a most insulting manner, and it is tried even to prove he is a thief. The boy who gathers all the testimony against the master turns out to be the real thief, and his father is the man who made the forged note and not the brother of the master. The wicked are all punished at the end and all turns out well.

AFTER THE HOLIDAY RUSH.

As some one once said, immediately after the holiday rush, "these are the days for the salvage corps in store and counting room;" yet, what to the unsophisticated may appear as a wreckage is in reality only a sort of housecleaning. For weeks during the season just drawing to a close—the best in the history of bookselling—it has been possible only to keep the stock from tumbling into absolute chaos, to keep its arrangement in order only sufficiently for the green help to be able to locate a certain book about twice out of five times—a divining rod or a "Sherlock Holmes" being required in the three other cases to locate or unearth the required book. Now at last there is time to restore order, to "line up" the stock, to balance the books.

Never is a better opportunity afforded for reviewing one's wisdom or error of judgment in buying and stocking up than at the close of the year. It is now that the bookseller must face the results of the year calmly and frankly. Success is always gratifying; but what about the failures! To determine for himself in what his error lay in overstocking on certain lines or in not buying enough of others, the bookseller must sit in judgment upon himself as sternly as he would upon his subordinates. If the matter could be shifted upon his manager or buyer the principal might be able to determine his subordinate's fault with almost scientific accuracy. Let him, therefore, apply the same standard of justice to himself and profit accordingly. Discovering in what his error lay may not help him to avoid making other errors in the future; but it should guide him in not making the same mistake twice, because repetition of a mistake is a crime that may lead to fatal consequences.

In the bustle and haste of the holiday rush and the complete attention which must of necessity be given to the proper handling of the many demands for books for gifts, it may have escaped the attention of some booksellers that the first two months of the year may really be made the most productive of all. The regular customer and those new friends won by the bookseller's special provision for the holiday season will now be in need of the more staple and sober books and good editions for which the demand is growing steadily. The bookseller during the last three months has come in sight of hundreds of new faces with which he should become better acquainted, and with whose owners he may become more closely associated provided he has given satisfaction and made a good impression in the beginning. The public is willing to buy books every day in the year and to pay good prices, too, as witness the case of Mrs. King's transactions in books reported in our issue for December 29. It ought to make the legitimate book-trade blush to have such patrons of literature fall into the hands of the Philistines just for the lack of a little enterprise on their part.

Then, in February we have Valentine's Day, which for several years has kept those booksellers who know how to cater to special seasons very nearly as busy as Christmastide; and close upon that frivolous season follow preparations for the Lenten season, when there is always an active demand for religious books. Were we to select the two most satisfactory months of the year for constructive bookselling we would name January and February.

THE dictionary war continues into 1907, as is evident from our advertising pages. On the legal side, there are two main issues. The question whether the use of the word "Webster" can be continued by the G. & C. Merriam Company as the exclusive right in the nature of a trade-mark is still waiting decision in Boston, where an opinion should be handed down shortly. The other point concerns the question whether the omission of the American copyright notice extra-territorially, as on English editions, forfeits copyright. The decision of the Circuit Court of Chicago, mentioned in our last week's issue, holds that this is not the case, on which ground the injunction against the United Dictionary Company on certain minor Webster's dictionaries was granted. It is possible that this case may be appealed to the U S. Supreme Court for final arbitrament, but whether this will be done seems not yet certain.

BROTHERHOOD OF COMMERCIAL TRAVELLER'S DINNER.

THE twenty-second annual banquet of the Brotherhood of Commercial Travellers was held at the Waldorf-Astoria, on Thursday evening, December 27. Nearly one hundred of its members and their friends comfortably filled the handsome dining hall, and did full justice to an ample menu. After coffee was served the president, Victor M. Cupples, delivered an address in which he paid tribute to the Brotherhood and felicitated its members upon their loyalty and fellowship. He then introduced an old and popular friend of the Brotherhood, James Clarence Harvey, who gave a first reading of his new poem on the true story of the Garden of Eden. Its free and fanciful style immensely pleased his audience. The poem is not for publication, however, being reserved for a prospective special limited edition of the author's wanderings on Parnassus. The next speaker, Senator P. H. McCarren, of Brooklyn, gave the Brotherhood a general talk that found great favor, and the Senator at its finish was acclaimed "a jolly good jollier." A toast was then drunk to John A. McQuillan and William B. Perkins, two former Knights of the Grip, who are now blind, following which the chairman called upon several of the former presidents of the Brotherhood, including John H. Black, John Hovenden, William J. Kelly and H. M. Caldwell for "short talks," and then rounded out, with interspersed singing, one of the most enjoyable dinners of this ancient order of good fellows.

The menu and souvenir contributed by the publishers, the H. M. Caldwell Company, was a copy of Harvey's "Over the Nuts and Wine," shaped as a bottle in a cooler, with the menu inserted in the front pages.

WM. G. JOHNSTON & CO.'S FIFTIETH ANNIVERSARY.

THE annual New Year's dinner given by Wm. G. Johnston & Co., of Pittsburg, Pa., to their employees was held on New Year's day at the Fort Pitt Hotel. It was quite a pleasant affair, celebrating the fiftieth anniversary of the firm's large stationery and printing business, now located at the corner of Penn Avenue and Ninth Street. The dining room was decorated appropriately to the occasion, and Mr. Harry P. Pears, manager of the firm, made a very entertaining toastmaster. Short addresses were made by Charles H. Clough and William H. Murphy, who have been with the firm for over one-third of a century. A. L. Keil, the eastern representative of the firm, F. E. Loeffler and L. R. Miller, represented the factory; John Mackay represented the loose-leaf salesmen; J. A. Cooper, Samuel Seemann and Harry Hoffman represented the Stationery Department; and John J. McShane, Jr., Harry P. Pears and Clarence A. Whiteside represented the Accounting Department. Other short speeches were made by a number of the employees, and the dinner was brought to a close by all rising and singing "Auld Lang Syne," followed by three rousing cheers for Harry P. Pears and Wm. G. Johnston & Co.

THE PRESENT STATUS OF THE GERMAN BOOKTRADE.

THE official directory of the German booktrade, published by the Börsenverein der deutschen Buchhändler, for 1907, records the names of 11,737 firms in the book business, or 490 more firms than were reported a year ago, which is accounted for by the fact that since January 1, 1906, 791 new firms came into existence and 301 went out of business. There were 38 failures, 702 changes in firm names, and 133 deaths. The 11,737 firms are located in 2275 cities as follows: 1584 in the German empire, 299 in Austro-Hungary; 77 in Switzerland; 219 in other parts of Europe; 57 in America; 13 in Africa; 17 in Asia and 9 in Australia. The number of localities represented has been increased during the year by 153.

COMSTOCK NO LONGER POST-OFFICE INSPECTOR.

ANTHONY COMSTOCK, the secretary of the New York Society for the Suppression of Vice, it is reported, was notified last week by the Postmaster-General that his credentials as Post-Office Inspector had been cancelled. This position, held by Mr. Comstock for thirty-four years, enabled him to go to any post-office and open suspected mail at his discretion. Mr. Comstock at the same time was notified that he would be reappointed as Inspector and carried on the payrolls with a salary of $1500 a year, and a daily allowance of $3, if he would give up all other employment. As Mr. Comstock as secretary of the Society for the Suppression of Vice draws a salary of $5000 a year and is said to have perquisites, it is not likely that he will withdraw from the Society. This action of the Post-Office Department is supposed to be due to the agitation of the Art Students' League, an issue of whose magazine was recently confiscated by Comstock on the ground that it contained lewd and lascivious pictures.

OBITUARY NOTES.

ALBERT W. BERG, organist and composer, died at his home in New York on January 2. Mr. Berg was born in Frankfort-on-the-Main, in 1825, and came to this country when very young. He studied music in Paris and, returning to this country, began to teach music. After some years of teaching Berg in the early '50s became connected with the publishing firm now known as William A. Pond & Co., and remained with them up to the time of his death as musical editor of the works they published. They published much music of Mr. Berg's own composition. This is chiefly church music, but includes a number of songs that enjoyed popularity. He was organist for a number of years at St. Paul's, later at Zion and finally, for fifteen years, at the Church of the Transfiguration. He played at the funeral of George Holland, when Joe Jefferson gave the church its nickname with his "Then God bless the little church around the corner." He leaves a wife and four children. The children are Albert Ellery Berg, the dramatic critic and editor;

Lily D'Angelo Berg, vocal teacher; L. de Coppet Berg, the architect, builder of the Metropolitan Opera House, and Walter G. Berg, chief engineer of the Lehigh Valley Railroad.

GUSTAV KRUELL, the well-known artist, died on January 2 at San Luis Obispo, Cal. Kruell, to whom American wood engraving owes a great debt, was born in 1843, in Düsseldorf, and was a pupil of R. Brendeamour, of that famous art city. He produced a remarkable series of portraits of Lincoln, Grant, Sherman and other figures in American history, portraits of great vitality, and in technique possessing a breadth and a richness of texture and color suggesting the art of the painter. Some of these were published a few years ago under the title of "A Portfolio of National Portraits," with text by Royal Cortissoz. In general, however, his works were circulated after the fashion of etchings or other prints, or he undertook private commissions. "He was," as the New York Tribune truly says, "an enthusiastic, industrious man, absorbed in his art, and he has left a considerable body of work to his credit. His best portraits are not only masterly in workmanship, but have distinction of style. Though his art [wood engraving] lost its vogue some time ago, and has since been supported only by a limited number of discerning connoisseurs and publishers, there is no danger that what he did for it will be forgotten."

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

THE Anglo-American Executive Committee has purchased the house in Rome, in the Piazza di Spagna, in which Keats died. The purchase price was $12,000. Eight thousand dollars more is needed to pay off the mortgage on the place.

THE wedding of Post Wheeler, the poet, who is second secretary of the American Embassy at Tokio, and Hallie Erminie Rives, the novelist, took place at the Embassy at noon on December 29. The attendance was very large, including many prominent Japanese and foreigners.

E. F. BENSON, the author of "Dodo," has completed a new novel, entitled "Sheaves," which is to be published serially before it appears in book form. Mr. Benson is at work on a book dealing with "English Figure Skating," which is to be brought out in a sumptuous edition with many illustrations.

MAURICE HEWLETT's new story, "The Stooping Lady," begins its run as a serial in the January Bookman. Upon its completion at the end of the summer it will be published in book form by Dodd, Mead & Co. Mr. Hewlett, it will be recalled, first claimed the attention of American readers with his "Earthwork Out of Tuscany" and "Forest Lovers." As a critic and descriptive writer he is well known through "The Road in Tuscany."

LIKE Thackeray, Mrs. Margaret Deland began her career as an artist, instead of as an author. After receiving her education at one of the best of girls' schools, she—then Margaret Campbell—went to New York City and studied drawing and designing at the Cooper Institute. She graduated at the head of her class, and her ability was so marked that she was promptly asked to take the place of instructor in design at the Girls' Normal College in the same city. She accepted the offer, and it was while holding this position that she met her future husband, Lorin F. Deland. They were married in 1880, and since then their home has been in Boston. Her real name is "Margaretta Wade Deland," but she prefers to sign her work simply "Margaret Deland."

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

The Atlantic Monthly will celebrate its fiftieth anniversary in November of this year.

The Gentleman's Magazine, which a year ago was taken over by the Harmsworth interests, with the new year loses its editor, A. H. Bullen, the Elizabethan scholar, who during the year of his incumbency of the editorial chair revived the ancient traditions of Sylvanus Urban.

THE New York Hippodrome has begun the publication of a "real newspaper," entitled The Scandalizer, devoted entirely to the interests of the chorus girls, chorus men, principals and stage hands of that institution. It is edited by Rose La Harte and published by Burne O'Sullivan, assistant stage manager, and will include "articles of an unlifting nature," as well as gossip. The first number is dated January 5.

Yachting is the title of a new monthly magazine devoted to water sports of all kinds, just published by the Yachting Company, 206 Broadway, New York City. Among the articles in the first issue is one by Sir Thomas Lipton on "American Yachting." Lawrence Perry contributes the first chapter of a series on "Successful American Yacht Clubs," and Owen Roberts outlines the prospects of the coming aquatic season.

Harper's Weekly with its issue for January 5 enters upon its fiftieth year. The Weekly, founded at the suggestion of Fletcher Harper, begun under the editorship of Henry Mills Alden and George William Curtis, and continued by a line of able successors has deservedly held a high place in the ranks of journalism for its devotion to American ideals, even at times when its championship of these ideals on several occasions threatened its very existence. We greet our contemporary on its birthday, and wish it many happy returns of the day.

BUSINESS NOTES.

COLUMBUS, O.—A. G. Geren has recently enlarged his store, The 'Varsity Supply Company, at 1602 North High Street, and has added a department of pictures and picture framing, also, a magazine stand. Mr. Geren would be pleased to receive catalogues of both American and English publishers.

BROOKLYN, N. Y.—The Neil-Morrow-Ladd Company has been incorporated to take over the business of the Neil-Morrow-Ladd Book Company, by N. M. Ladd, M. J. Ladd, F. H. Ladd, E. Lothard McClure, N. E. Goodrich and M. J. Van Orden.

ELYRIA, O.—Lagron's new bookstore has been opened with a good line of books, stationery, novelties, etc.

JACKSON, TENN.—N. D. Smith's bookstore was damaged by fire two weeks ago. The Christmas goods and toy department were seriously damaged.

PLATTSMOUTH, NEB.—R. L. Mauzy has sold his book business to Mr. Patterson.

REPUBLIC, WASH.—Simon Basinski has purchased the entire stock of books, etc., and the newspaper business of George B. Stocking.

ST. LOUIS, MO.—Williams & Kohn, Ltd., bookbuyers and sellers at 306 North Twelfth Street, would be pleased to have publishers' catalogues and lists of desiderata from booksellers.

WHAT CHEER, IA.—B. A. Clutter & Co., druggists, booksellers and stationers, have been succeeded by B. A. Clutter.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

THE third annual convention of the National Association of Stationers and Manufacturers will be held in July, beginning on the 15th, in St. Paul, Minn.

WILLIAM J. BURKHARDT, 206 Ocean Avenue, Jersey City, N. J., has a new line of Valentine Post-Cards, of which he will be pleased to send samples on application. They sell at $1 a hundred or $7.50 a thousand.

DODD, MEAD & CO. have in press a work entitled "Reminiscences of Men and Horses," by Hamilton Busby, which deals with trainers and breeders of horses and horsemen throughout the country as well as with the horses themselves.

FREDERICK WARNE & CO. announce that the published price of Newnes' Art Library has been made uniform with the Treasures of European Galleries series, namely, $1.25 net the volume. This step is rendered necessary by the increased cost of production since the Art Library was initiated.

HENRY HOLT & COMPANY have concluded arrangements to publish a new novel by William deMorgan, whose "Joseph Vance" has received such remarkable praise from leading critics both here and abroad. The new book, (about which no particulars have as yet been given out,) will bear the odd title "Alice for Short."

SINCE the completion of Child's monumental work on the ballads it has been supposed that his collection of three hundred and five comprised the whole number recoverable. But in his third series of "Popular Ballads of the Olden Time," just published by A. H. Bullen, Frank Sidgwick claims to have discovered a new ballad, entitled "The Jolly Juggler."

ROBERT GRIER COOKE, INC., has published a book entitled "Through the Sieve," by the Rev. Dr. Addison Ballard, a striking interpretation of Christ's life and teachings, an analysis of the characters and experiences of the apostles in their bearing upon the religious dogma and spiritual unrest of to-day, and a plea for the oneness of the Bible both in its message and its inspiration.

AT the request of the Bishops of London and Southwark the editors of the English Hymnal have decided to issue an abridged edition of their book, which, it is hoped, may be found useful for those who desire an alternative to the complete collection. Henry Frowde, (the Oxford University Press,) is now at work upon this new edition and hopes to have it ready early this year.

THE C. M. CLARK PUBLISHING COMPANY have published a story of New England life entitled "Old Home Week," by James Ball Naylor, with pictures and decorations by F. Gilbert Edge; also "Yarb and Cretine," by Dr. George H. B. Swayze, of Philadelphia, an argument for fairer and better treatment of the negro who works, thinks and studies, in which the Ku-Klux Klan plays an important part.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & CO. will celebrate the centenary of Longfellow's birth on February 27 by publishing a volume to be entitled "Henry Wadsworth Longfellow: a Sketch of His Life," by Professor Charles Eliot Norton. The autobiographical matter included in the poet's notes written for the later editions of his poems, his correspondence and his journals, will be laid under contribution for this book.

H. M. CALDWELL CO., of Boston, announces many new and attractive features for this season in the Beaux and Belles Series of Valentine novelties, the volumes selected being particularly appropriate for the valentine trade. The appearance of the original and attractive bindings has been further enhanced by the novel and sumptuous manner in which the volumes are tied with various shades of fine taffeta ribbon. Each book is enclosed in a dainty covered box.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY have just brought out a work on "Pulmonary Tuberculosis," by Dr. Albert Philip Francine, which presents the subject of the modern and specialized treatment of consumption in a practical and masterly fashion. The volume is addressed to the profession, but, except where the nature of the subject discussed is necessarily technical, it is written in so simple and direct a style as to be readily understood by the laity.

EVER since the day of publication of the "Hohenlohe Memoirs" the Macmillan Company have been racing to keep pace with the demand for the work. The first printing was entirely exhausted in advance of publication, and it was not until last week that the supply of copies caught up with the demand. In the meantime orders from the large booksellers were cut in two by the publishers, in order to divide the available supply of the books as evenly and fairly as possible.

It appears that the original of Dickens's "Little Dorrit" is still alive. According to report she is Mary Ann Cooper, aged ninety-four, living at Southgate, who had "a close boy and girl friendship" with Dickens, who used to call her "little Dorrit," for "he was always great on nicknames," says the old lady. He used to say to her, "I'll write a book about you some day, and I shall call it 'Little Dorrit.'" But it does not appear that her history in any respect resembled the charming heroine of the Marshalsea.

John Murray, London, has in press a new series, the aim of which is to trace the growth of English literature and the causes to which its force and wealth are due, introducing just so much biography and incident as may serve to link the narrative to the history of the country. The first volume will deal with the sixteenth century and the early part of the seventeenth, and will be accompanied by three graduated volumes of extracts for classes in schools. The authors are E. W. Edmunds, of Luton Secondary School, and Frank Spooner, Director of Education for Bedfordshire.

E. P. Dutton & Co. have just brought out a work entitled "The [English] Army in 1906, a Policy and a Vindication," by the Right Hon. H. O. Arnold-Forster, Secretary for War in Mr. Balfour's administration; "Comedy Queens of the Georgian Era," by John Fyvie, an account of twelve of those notable women, among whom are Lavinia Fenton, who became Duchess of Bolton, Elizabeth Farren, Countess of Derby, Mary Robinson, "Perdita," Harriot Mellon, Duchess of St. Albans, and Peg Woffington; also, "The Book of the Victoria Cross," compiled from official papers, and other authentic sources, by A. L. Haydon.

Houghton, Mifflin & Co. have just issued a new edition of Samuel T. Pickard's profusely illustrated work, "Whittier-Land," of which this is the fourth printing. It contains a portrait of Whittier never before reproduced, it being from an ambrotype taken when the poet was about fifty years old, and it is thought by those who knew him in that period of his intense activity to be a most striking likeness. There is also an addition to the letterpress, including an account of Whittier's personal appearance and manner, written by the English poet and critic, Edmund Gosse, librarian of the House of Lords, who visited this country in 1884.

Word comes by way of the London Evening News that Clarence M. Jones, of Columbus, O., has been offering for £2,000,000 his book entitled "From Rime to Reason, or, the Great San Francisco Earthquake Rhythmically Orchestrically and Logically Considered." The information to be imparted by this book, according to the author, "besides upsetting existing theories as to the causes of earthquakes and volcanoes, will tend to revolutionize the philosophy of terrestrial physics." At last accounts the book has not yet been placed and the author has returned to this country in the hopes of inducing one of the many billionaire publishers here to undertake its publication on his terms.

The John C. Winston Company have just ready a volume of verses entitled "For Your Sweet Sake," by James Ephraim McGirt, a young negro of Philadelphia, who promises to become a worthy successor to Paul Laurence Dunbar. McGirt, who is but twenty-nine years old, comes from North Carolina, and takes his name from the family to whom his parents belonged in slavery days. While he was still a boy his father and mother removed from Robinson County to Greensboro, and there they remained, the lad attending Bennett College. After graduating he taught school in Greensboro for a year, and six years ago went to Philadelphia, where he has since been engaged in lecturing occasionally to churches and lyceums, and in editing McGirt's Magazine, a periodical which has a large circulation among members of the negro race throughout the country.

John W. Luce & Co., Boston, will publish shortly the first complete translation of Dr. Frederick Van Eeden's "The Quest," the first part of which appeared in Holland fifteen years ago. The second came some years later, and the third, which for political reasons did not appear in Holland, is of recent date. In the first part the author discloses the heart and mind and soul of a little boy walking in two worlds, one the structure of his own imagination, one real, but elusive and shadowy to him. In the second part the boy wanders from place to place with a scissors grinder, learning to know the simple folk for whom the man plies his craft, and listening to the message which he bears to them. In the third part he faces the real world, grim, stern, a world of battle, but with a brightening touch of romance for every man, and he makes a happy marriage and enters upon a new life. They will publish in February "The Miracle Worker," by Gerald Maxwell, a strong story in which a great surgeon is the central figure. By his matchless skill, aided by a suggestion of occult power, the miracle is worked.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted," book-trade subscribers are given the privilege of a free advertisement for books out of print, of five nonpareil lines, exclusive of address, in any issue except special numbers, to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents a line, and amount should be inclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents a line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents a nonpareil line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

All other small undisplayed advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents a nonpareil line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their Communications.

BOOKS WANTED.

☞ In answering, please state edition, condition, and price, including postage or express charges.

Houses that are willing to deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash.]

☞ Write your wants plainly and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as not having been received. The "Publishers' Weekly" does not hold itself responsible for errors.

It should be understood that the appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the "Publishers' Weekly" does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it is endeavored to safeguard these columns by withdrawing the privilege of their use from advertisers who are not "good pay," booksellers should take the usual precaution, as to advertisers not known to them, that they would take in making sales to any unknown parties

for 1907

NOW READY

It is a fact

The serious drawback to a greater interest in valentines is largely due to the perishable nature of the goods usually offered, and the fact that "left-overs" wipe out the profit on what are sold. Yet there is a noticeable increase of business, but expensive and flimsy articles seem "passé" these practical times.

The useful, when combined with the dainty, seems the more effective form of expressing admiration, and good books are always in demand as appropriate gifts at all seasons.

The volumes have been selected as particularly appropriate for this occasion, while the novel and attractive bindings have been further enhanced by an artistically tied and harmonizing satin ribbon Each book is enclosed in a dainty covered box.

Our line for ingenuity and originality surpasses anything formerly offered the public.

KICKS—NOT PRAISE

WE are human enough to enjoy our customers' frequent letters of praise and good will, but the most useful letters we get are kicks. If we know our mistakes we at least have a chance to correct them; and it is through kicks that we learn about them—sometimes impressively. We invite kicks, therefore, as salutary and helpful to us in making our establishment the most efficient wholesale book house in the country.

HALF A ROGUE

By the author of THE MAN ON THE BOX

Illustrated by HARRISON FISHER

449 pages, $1.50

Half a Rogue is a big story. It has charm and force—all the charm of lovely women and all the force of manly men. It is more than an interesting story and a fascinating romance—it is a novel with a definite purpose and the purpose is splendid in conception and clear and decisive in its development. It is, in a word, the best novel yet written by Harold MacGrath.

SAUL of TARSUS

Saul of Tarsus will make for itself as permanent a place as Ben-Hur. Its theme is mighty, its action swiftly rushing, its incidents closely packed, its plot intricate, its setting brilliantly wrought, its characterization masterly, its spirit passionate. Saul of Tarsus is a book of unmistakable sincerity and distinction, greatness and power.—WILLIAM R. LIGHTON in Omaha World-Herald.
